NOTICE TO ALL PUBLIC EATING PLACES

The demands for beef for the army of the United States and the Allied armies and their civil population for this summer are beyond our present surplus. All public eating places will, therefore, take notice that, beginning forthwith, they will be expected to remove from their bill of fare boiled beef, beefsteak, and roast beef, except as follows: That for two meals in each week boiled beef may be served; that at one meal in each week beefsteak may be served; that at one meal in each week roast beef may be served.

Thus rule applies to all hotels, restaurants, boarding houses and other public eating places in this county. It is requested that the proprietors of all such places should meet to determine at which meals, and on which days these three articles shall be placed on the bill of fare. In the event such an agreement is not had, each public eating place will be required to post conspicuously a sign stating the days and meals at which boiled-beef, beefsteak and roast beef will be served.

The Food Administration has in the field inspectors of hotels and other public eating places for the purpose of ascertaining that the rules of the Administration are being followed, and it is requested that every facility be given these inspectors upon their call, in order that the work may be done as rapidly as possible.

MASON COUNTY ATTORNEY

Says He Was Misinformed as to the Time Set for His Trial at Catlettsburg.

David M. Meyers, Mason county attorney under indictment in the Federal court on a charge of violating the espionage act, was in Lexington Saturday in conference with his attorney preparatory to the trial of his case which is now set for July 18.

In a statement Mr. Meyers said that the forfeiture of his bond by Judge Cochran at Catlettsburg last week was the result of a misunderstanding of the time set for his trial. He said that he had been informed by one of the assistant United States District attorneys that his trial would not be called until afternoon and upon his arrival in Catlettsburg he learned that court had been adjourned and his bond had been forfeited. He says he fully explained the matter to United States District Attorney T. D. Slattery however, and an agreement has been made to rescind the forfeiture. Mr. Slattery agreeing to make such a motion. Mr. Meyers says his bond was for $2,000 instead of $4,000 as reported.

The attorney denies that Mrs. Hillary Orme, wife of the man he is charged with having tried to keep out of military service, is very wealthy and he also says that no claim has ever been made before any of the draft boards that Orme was the sole support of his wife.

Mr. Meyers yesterday denied all charges that have been made against him as did also J. W. Orme, indicted for false swearing, who accompanied him there. Both men said that the cases against them grew out of jealousy and that they would establish their innocence beyond a doubt at the trial on July 18.

PRIVATE RICHARD THOMAS HOME

Private Richard Thomas of the Marine Corps of Quantico, Va., is home on ten day furlough and during this time will do recruiting work for the Marine Corps. This regiment of which Private Thomas is a member, needs 10 men to make up the required number so that it will be possible for this Marine regiment to go to France. Instead of the usual six months training, the volunteer for this branch will finish in three months and will then be sent over the water. Men in draft age will be exempted from army service, who wish to volunteer in this branch. This is a fine chance for any one wishing to be released from army service and who wishes to get in the midst of the fighting quickly.

AUSTRIANS CROSS PIAVE

Austrians Use Great Masses of Infantry; Italians Hold Firm—Italian Official Statement Says Three Thousand Have Been Taken by Their Forces.

Rome, June 16—(Austrian Official)—There were scenes of great enthusiasm in the Chamber of Deputies today when the Minister of War, General Zupelli, announced the success of the Italian troops and the repulse of the enemy, despite his numerical superiority, on the greater part of the front. The whole house rose and applauded.

The war minister said that the capture of 3,000 prisoners was proof that the Italian troops were truly heroic.

Rome, June 16—A battle of great violence, in which large masses of infantry are being used by the Austrians in an attempt to break through the Italian lines, particularly in the eastern sector of the Asiago plateau in the Brenta valley and on Monte Grappa, is described in the official report from Italian headquarters today. The enemy's attacks were met in the advance defensive area.

The Italian forces are firmly holding the Asiago front, according to the War Office announcement. They have completely recaptured their original positions on Aostone and Monte Solara and are closely pressing the enemy who crossed the Pieve.

The text of the Italian official statement reads:

"A great battle has been in progress on our front since yesterday.

"After artillery preparations, which was exceptionally intense on account of the violence of the fire and the number of guns employed, the enemy has begun his expected offensive by launching large masses of infantry to attack our positions in the eastern sector of the Asiago plateau, at the end of the Brenta valley and on Monte Grappa, by attempting at several points to force the Pieve, and by carrying out heavy local demonstrations on the remainder of the front.

"Our infantry and that of the Allied contingent fearlessly bore the tempest of destructive fire, and, supported by a barrage of their own artillery, which had already prudently anticipated the enemy's preparation with a timely and deadly counter preparation bombardment, bravely sustained the enemy's onslaught in the advanced defensive area."

German Shock Troops Raid American First Lines

With the American Army in France, June 16—About six hundred German shock troops raided the American first line positions at the village of Xivray, in the Toul sector, enemy got into Xivray, but were soon driven out. At other points the Germans were badly beaten. The attack began at three o'clock in the morning after an extremely violent bombardment of the front line, American batteries and villages far in the rear. The Germans advanced swiftly to the attack, but were met by a heavy fire. Those who penetrated Xivray were forced speedily to withdraw and elsewhere the enemy was completely repulsed in hard fighting lasting more than two hours.

According to prisoners, the object of the enemy was to take American prisoners. This object failed, as no Americans are reported missing.

Washington, June 16—Germany's new wolves have sunk two more newtral vessels in American water.

The latest victims of the raiders which first made their appearance off the Atlantic coast some three weeks ago are the sailing ship Kringsjaa and the bark Samon, both Norwegian. The crew of the former has been picked up by an American warship, which is bringing them to an Atlantic port, and that of the latter was landed tonight at Norfolk.

Both vessels were sent down 90 miles off the Virginia coast. The Samon was sunk by shell fire at eight o'clock Friday morning, the Navy Department announced tonight but the time and manner of the sinking of the Kringsjaa has not been reported to the Department.

BEAUTIFUL SERVICES

Held at St. Patrick's Church This Morning in Honor of James Kellum, First Mayville Boy to Enlist and First to Be Killed in Present War.

In tender tribute to Private James Kellum, a beautiful Memorial service was held at St. Patrick's Church this morning, many people being present to pay honor and reverence to the memory of this young hero, who at the age of 19 years was killed fighting bravely in his country's cause. Private James Kellum was the first young man from this town to enter the service, enlisting on the seventh of April, the day after war was declared and is the first young man killed in this war from here.

The services were opened by the singing of "America," after which Mass was said for the brave soul of Jimmie Kellum.

Father Jones then made a short talk telling how at the beginning of the war this splendid young man had heard the call of service and responded to it. Father Jones compared the spirit of Leslie Arthur, the first Mason county boy to be killed and the spirit of James Kellum to that of a Washington and Lincoln. One leaving a luxurious environment and all that heart could wish and the other, the sole support of a widowed mother, hearing the call from the midst of labor and poverty were typical of the spirit of Washington and Lincoln.

Father Jones compared the sacrifice we are making to that made by our boys in the trenches and asked that people at home awake to their duty and do their part in this war.

The services were dismissed by the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

SALUTATORY ADDRESS

Of Frank Browning Delivered at High School Commencement Last Thursday Evening.

At the Maysville High School Commencement held in the High School auditorium last Thursday night, Mr. Frank Browning delivered the following address:

We look just about like all the other classes who have stood here before you on other June nights, do we not? Just a group of nice (we hope you'd say that) American girls and boys ending their days in the greatest of American institutions—the public school—and facing life—laughingly, fearlessly, thoughtlessly? No not that. Therein we are different. Therefore, we ask you to return this, our greeting, with more seriousness, more sympathy, more encouragement than you thought needful in times past. We are not laughing tonight—not with our hearts. It is easy enough to laugh with the lips. We are not fearless, though each of us possesses a high degree of courage that is not to be treated lightly, but deep within us we can not deny there is fear—fearful but ever present. And thoughtless? We are only boys and girls of seventeen and eighteen; we are often weary of thinking, thinking, when in the past those other boys and girls of our ages could afford not to think, but just to dream wonderful dreams.

Those other boys and girls as they sat here waiting for their diplomas looked ahead with smiles to college, to their chosen work, success, rosy hued, in offices, on farms, to lives with some sorrow perhaps, a little dull at times, but peaceful withal, bringing at least a measure of success, a worth while compensation, and finally contentment in homes of their own, with wife or husband, and children to enjoy and to sorrow for. But we have no such plans; we may not dream. We may go to college this fall, into offices or fields, the girls may play for a while longer, but we know it is only a short probation before we too become the pawns of war. We are the boys and girls who have no future, too young to be able to dwell upon the past, with a restless, unsatisfying present. But we are blessed above all who ever stood here, though our burdens will be the heaviest; our sufferings the most racking; our disappointments the keenest; our sorrows the most poignant; our sacrifices the greatest and yet every man and woman among you envies us, every child among you and children of each succeeding generation, will envy us. We are the children of the crucifixion.

And that means, as it does for our older brothers and sisters, death for some of us, upon battlefields far from home, scarred and broken bodies, uncongenial tasks, work, work, work; the remuneration of what we have been taught is the inalienable right of every man and woman, home, mate, and children. Not even these girls are to be permitted to lead sheltered lives. They, with us boys, must bend their shoulders beneath crushing burdens and put away those dreams that are a woman's whole existence. For those of us who survive the holocaust, there will be even greater tasks, the physical task of rebuilding vast areas of wreckage, the greater tasks of mind and soul of creating new and wiser laws that will insure democracy, the brotherhood of man, that the anguish and death of millions shall not have been in vain, and the greatest of all tasks the replacing of hate by love. And when this is done then and then only will people know how truly we are envied for we shall have gained the most glorious immortality. We, who surrendered homes shall live in every free and happy home in every land. We who will know hunger and pain, shall live in the golden grain, the rich fruit that will insure all races health and plenty. We, who toiled in the tortured soil shall live in every flower that gladdens the eye of man. We, who were childless shall be the parent of every fearless laughing child for we shall make possible a new race, the children of resurrection.

REPORT OF CHILD WELFARE CAMPAIGN IN MASON COUNTY

The child weighing and measuring campaign in Mason county came to a very successful conclusion last week, with a registration of 1260 children.

When the Woman's Committee of the Council of Defense handed out these Chairmanships last fall they were so camouflaged that their really formidable proportions did not appear. It was not until the Chief of the Children Bureau issued the pronouncements for a weighing and measuring test of all children under five that the magnitude of the task was disclosed. Speaking for one chairman who began while recovering from a severe illness, it can be truly said she has been in the trenches for six weeks. During the delusive peace of the winter, with a firm faith in preparation, and pursuant to instructions from the Children's Bureau, a large central committee composed of the heads of the various organizations affecting the interests of children, was gradually assembled to secure better co-operation and co-ordination in their various lines of work.

At the same time strong efforts were made to strengthen our Health League, which had been somewhat pushed into the background by the war, renew and maintain our Visiting Nurse work, and secure a full time Health Officer for the city and county, and there is at present in our county a strong and active realization of the importance of public health work in its relation to child welfare and the war.

In organizing for the weighing and measuring test and local child welfare work, a chairman of ability and a strong permanent committee of representative people, composed of five good women and two men, was appointed for the duration of the war in each of the twenty-two precincts of the city and county. The physicians were most generous of their time in city and county, and much of the success of the effort is due to their unselfish labors. Dr. Locke, Health Officer, gave all possible assistance and Dr. Devine helped to solve many a riddle. Miss Casey tried hard to be every place at once, and succeeded in giving assistance in almost every precinct in the county. The city nurses,

National War Savings Day

There's an army. Yes, a dozen armies—of stalwart, wind-bronzed young men standing between you and the grizzly Hun. These young fellows are giving their ease, their comfort, their friends and homes, their bodies, the hope of life—giving for you—for you.

You can at least lend your money for them? Prove your patriotism with dollars.

National War Savings Committee

The Public Ledger

Miss Nivin, and later Miss Wallingford, and Miss Hughes, Superintendent of the City Mission, were of great assistance to committees in town. Miss Rupp, being in town, also helped. A number of our most competent colored women gave much valuable assistance to the chairman in each ward.

The Chairmen and committees undertook their task with their eyes wide open and no more striking evidence of patriotism has been seen, and certainly no such arduous form of war work at home, has been undertaken by any women as was undertaken by more than a hundred women of Mason county, who promptly put their shoulders to the wheel at the call of their government and carried the work for the children of the nation through to a most successful conclusion. It is said to cost $10,000,000 to take the census of the United States when a mere male person burdened only with notebook and pencil goes from place to place, seeking the desired information. But here is a case where a group of women accompanied frequently by a physician or nurse and carrying their whole equipment with them, have gone into the inaccessible places and taken the census of practically the whole family, and weighed, measured and made a physical examination of an important portion of it, and almost all have expressed themselves as richer for the experience, and glad they had undertaken it. (It may be said, however, that none so far have been heard to express any desire to do it every year.) Certainly it was a call nobly responded to and the chairmen and committees have a right to feel proud of the success of their effort and the service they have rendered their government and their community, for the interest thus created and the benefits imparted can not and will not end with this campaign, but have brought a broader vision to hundreds of homes that will bear fruit in the years to come, for "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as by want of heart."

Even more vital to the welfare and continuation of the watchful care of children in wartime are the permanent committees thus created in each community, who understand their local situation, for as said by the Children's Bureau, each community must save its own babies, if they are to be saved at all.

The weighing and measuring test took place one week and the clinic, at which about a hundred children who needed further attention were examined, was held the following week, but as a permanent record was being made for the county, also, another week was taken to complete the work in greater detail. A record was made in a blank (composition) book, following the form furnished by Children's Bureau for permanent record. This involved a great deal of extra work, but Mason County can be proud of those twenty-two little black bound books. The cards were sent to Children's Bureau on June 4th. The campaign closed June 6th.

Following is the registration by precincts. Those marked by a star are the ones that obtained 100 per cent, or a complete registration. Two or three precincts, for unavoidable reasons, were unable to make a full canvass.

First Ward	60 per cent.
Second Ward	48 per cent.
Third Ward	20 per cent.
Fourth Ward	68 per cent.
Fifth Ward	100 per cent.
Sixth Ward	120 per cent.
Dieterich	51 per cent.
Plumtown	51 per cent.
Helena	64 per cent.
Sardis	62 per cent.
Murphysville	69 per cent.
Lewisburg	84 per cent.
East Mayslick	72 per cent.
West Mayslick	77 per cent.

The Children's Bureau outlines four "pressing essentials of a reasonable child welfare program in wartime."

1. Public protection of maternity and infancy; 2. Mother's care for older children; 3. Enforcement of all child labor laws and full schooling for all children of school age. Standards to be maintained in spite of war pressure; 4. Recreation for children and youth abundant, decent and protected from any form of exploitation. The first "drive" for infancy has been made. At two very interesting meetings of the Central Committee, the other questions were discussed. Superintendent Caplinger offered the use of the school buildings for educational meetings for mothers. The subject of school attendance and school exemptions for war work was discussed by the Superintendents of City and County schools. In regard to large per cent. of children out of school, Miss Hughes, Superintendent of City Mission gave it as her opinion that it was largely a matter of shoes. Mrs. Ross suggested the Military Commission begin with the children instead of adults.

Means to obtain a fuller milk supply for children was suggested, and co-operation of Health League invited.

The question of maintaining children in homes by trying to improve the home environment where possible, instead of institutional training was discussed. Juvenile Judge Purnell speaking strongly against confining youthful offenders with hardened criminals. Mrs. Longnecker and Miss Lloyd suggested the appointment of a number of good men and women in the Juvenile Court Board to try delinquent boys and girls privately, and urged that a police matron be in attendance on excursions and public gatherings where unprotected young girls assemble. Dr. Locke gave interesting talk on conditions in county.

The question of "recreation for children and youth abundant, decent and free from any form of exploitation" was discussed with much interest and many plans suggested, the most feasible of which seemed to be the Boy Scouts and school Y. W. C. A., already begun, but needing to be extended to boys and girls who have left school to go to work.

The subject of a Junior Red Cross organization was mentioned to the County Chairman of Red Cross and the Superintendent of Schools, as there is a great deal of girl power going to waste in Mason county which the recent casualty lists of American soldiers would seem to indicate will soon be badly needed.

In fact almost everything most prominent in the years tentative program of Children's Bureau has been either accomplished, measures taken toward accomplishing it, or at least discussed. This being one of the pioneer counties in Health League and Visiting Nurse work, a great deal has already been done in that line in the last few years, and it is to this fact that we ascribe the fact that most of the Mason County children examined were found above the average.

Respectfully submitted, MRS. E. L. WORTHINGTON, Chairman Health and Child Welfare Woman's Committee, Council of Defense.

Be on the level. It is only a step from the heights of folly to the depths of despair.

Many a man gets into trouble with his eyes open and then can't find the way out.

(By James H. Collins)

Have you a little new shipyard in your town?

In the startling of something like 100 brand-new ship building enterprises the past year, and the enlargement of others, Uncle Sam has dropped shipyards and shipbuilders into many a community around our coasts, and started a thriving new industry. If your town got one of these yards, probably you feel good about the new activity, the new jobs for workers, the new payroll putting money in circulation.

But your new shipyard is going to circulate something more than Uncle Sam's money—it will also bring you his ideas of sanitation and health.

When Uncle Sam tackled the Panama Canal job, he began at the sanitation end.

When he planned his draft Army and built the cantonments, sanitation was likewise the first consideration.

And in building ships, Uncle Sam holds what he found made for success in building a canal and training an Army.

Through the U. S. Shipping Board's Department of Health and Sanitation, under Lieut.-Col. Philip S. Deane, every shipyard is being supervised by sanitary experts, as well as communities adjacent to the shipyards. In most cases, as we shall see, it means radical reforms in health regulation and community spirit.

Some weeks ago, at a little shipyard recently set down in a rather sleep Atlantic coast town, an outbreak of dysentery was reported among shipyard workers, about 100 of them having suddenly come down with the malady. The Shipping Board had a sanitary engineer on the job immediately, making an investigation in co-operation with the State Board of Health. It was found that, while the drinking water supply used in the yards was entirely pure, being chlorinated, there was a temporary water supply for concrete mixing, in which polluted river water was used. Workmen had drunk from the concrete water supply, despite warning signs. As the best way of eliminating all chances in the matter, the sanitary engineers arranged for purifying the concrete water too, using chloride of lime to make it safe to drink.

The South has been particularly active in ship building, and numerous new yards have sprung up around the Gulf and South Atlantic Coast. The new Daughters type of wooden ship, just adopted as official by Uncle Sam because it is larger than the famous Ferris type, and can also be built with smaller timbers and less lumber, originated in a Texas shipyard.

The South is building ships, and its shipyard enterprises is bringing new standards of sanitation to many a Southern town.

Uncle Sam steps in as soon as the shipyard gets busy, looks into sanitation, and perhaps finds open privies, pigs in the street, malarial swamp lands and other bad conditions. Until the new shipyard came, people in that town hadn't thought much about sanitation. When good sanitary practice is pointed out to them, however, and its importance in building ships explained, community spirit rises to ship building spirit in every case, and a clean-up campaign begins.

Nor is it entirely in the Southern towns that bad conditions are found. One of the oldest communities in New England, and a place of considerable population, was found to be without a health officer, have dangerous open sewers, lack garbage collection, and below good health standards in other ways. When an old shipyard in that town was rehabilitated, Uncle Sam said, "Clean up!" And the town responded.

The Pacific coast threw its energy into shipbuilding to such good purpose that it launched the first merchant ships and made the first ship building records. Likewise, in its eagerness to build ships, the Pacific coast occasionally overlooked good sanitation.

One yard in that locality was handicapped by sickness. Workmen were hired only to quit, and during a single week the superintendent of steel construction, the foreman riveter and the foreman of the plate shop were all laid up in hospitals and their places were being filled by assistants just recovering from attacks of disease.

"If this goes on much longer" said the superintendent, "We will have to change our name from the 'Blank Shipbuilding Company' to the 'Blank Sanitarium Investment Company'."

Inspection showed that the yard lacked sanitary toilets and equipment for serving the men warm meals. It had too small a number of drinking fountains and was inadequate in other ways. Moreover, a large city sewer which ran over the flats near the shipyard was broken open, making easy the spread of disease through flies. The shipyard company had called the attention of the nearby city to the bad condition of its sewer, only to be told that no city funds would be available for repairing the break until July. When Uncle Sam stepped in through the Shipping Board, backed by the military authorities, who refused to detail soldiers to guard that shipyard until the sewer was repaired, there was a hurried meeting of the City Council and a special appropriation of $6,000 to make repairs. It took a special ordinance—but it was done five days after Uncle Sam got on the job.

In another ship building center there was a mysterious outbreak of disease. Fifty ship workers came down with it at the same time, with temperatures running up to 103 or more. There were rumors of poisoning by German spies. When Shipping Board health officers investigated however, they found that mosquitoes were to blame, and took steps to drain nearby swamp land in cooperation with the local authorities.

Mosquito work will probably play as important a part in ship building this summer, the country over, as it did in the building of the Panama Canal, for many of our new shipyards are situated in mosquito infested spots, places which have been neglected thus far because there was no especial need for cleaning them up. But mosquitoes and ship building cannot go together. So, in several dozen localities of this sort active drainage campaigns are being carried out by communities working with the Shipping Board.

One of the most notable projects in that line is the work at the big Hog Island yard, building fabricated steel ships, where $250,000 is being spent in permanent ditching which will rid that locality of mosquitoes for all time. The state of Pennsylvania has contributed $75,000, the city of Philadelphia $45,000, and manufacturing interests have also appropriated money, recognizing that the new industry justifies such expenditure.

This is one of the most encouraging phases of Shipping Board health work—the instant response of shipyard officials and communities when the need for better sanitation is pointed out. Again and again the Shipping Board's experts have made surveys, found bad conditions, and a lukewarm public opinion. With the skill of trained health investigators they have put their fingers on the unsanitary conditions responsible for disease and discontent in a shipyard, made these conditions plain through explanations, and secured team work from the community in cleaning up. The fact that we are at war has quickened public opinion everywhere. There is no need of telling people more than once, nowadays, about anything which hinders the war program. The very fact that a community has a shipyard gives it a special stake in the war game, and local pride assures the carrying out of everything necessary to play the biggest and most direct way.

Good sanitation in shipyards moreover is good business. It means the solution of the labor turnover problem. It costs money to hire and train men. If your men quit work as fast as you hire them because they cannot labor in comfort or health, the cost of hiring and training becomes prohibitive. Uncle Sam learned this on the Panama Canal job—that the most abundant labor supply in the world was inadequate if you tried to carry on the digging of a canal in a locality where men quit, or got sick, or died, faster than you could bring them in. With the scarcity of labor that characterizes war times, it would be even more foolish to try and build ships in unsanitary surroundings.

The work of the Shipping Board's Department of Health and Sanitation covers much more than the cleaning up workers is even more important. When Shipping Board investigators visit a locality, therefore, they look into many different things. The sanitary surveys include an inquiry into water supply, sewage, garbage and manure disposal, mosquitoes, flies, rats, roaches, and other vermin, toilets, washrooms and bathing facilities, street cleaning and laundry. Every shipyard is required to have medical and hospital facilities, and these are inspected, and information gathered about disease, epidemics and accidents. The living quarters of shipyard workers are investigated, and recommendations made for their convenience and comfort in bunk houses, homes, transportation to and from work, and recreation. Lunchroom and kitchen facilities are studied with a view to seeing that men get nourishing food, in clean surroundings, at reasonable prices. This involves investigation of milk, meat and ice supply, food storage facilities, cooking and dish-washing equipment, and so forth.

There was a shipyard on the Great Lakes which had difficulty last fall in keeping a work force of 1,000 men. Its labor turnover was very large. Investigation showed that the yard had grown so fast that too little attention had been paid to providing for the comfort and convenience of ship workers.

The lunchroom was inadequate, the food poor. It was difficult for new workers coming in to find good living quarters and there was little in the way of bathing facilities or recreation.

Today this shipyard is fully manned, and has little trouble in keeping good workers. The expensive item of labor turnover has been reduced until it is practically negligible. The company purchased an old passenger steamship, brought it to the shipyard and converted it into a floating hotel. First class kitchen equipment was installed, with toilets, washrooms and other conveniences, providing good meals for two or three hundred men. A large dormitory was built near the yard, with a clubroom at one end where men could read, write, play pool or cards, have music and visit and smoke. The sleeping rooms in this dormitory were warmed by hot air last winter, and the playing system is to be used this summer for blowing cool air through the corridors. With these conveniences for making their work pleasant the employees organized a "Shipbuilder's Service Club," elected officers, and arranged for baseball, bowling and basketball games, with dances and other social affairs among themselves.

It is now becoming a matter of pride among ship workers in that yard to serve for the period of the war, and arrangements have been made whereby every man who remains in the employ of the company until the end of the war will receive a certificate, showing that he not only served in the fight for democracy, but that he stuck out his post until the fight was won.

We are creating a new merchant ship building industry, drawing in men of other trades, teaching them riveting, caulking, chipping, framing, punning and other shipyard crafts.

With this new industry is being created a new working spirit, a pride in skill, speed, inventiveness and rivalry with other nations, which will make ship building as characteristic an American big industry as automobile production, or railroading, or steel making.

Along with the industry and its working spirit will be created new standards of health and efficiency. Uncle Sam's work does not stop with the cleaning up of bad health conditions, or the providing of comfort and convenience. He will safeguard life and health by giving the shipyards the results of the best that has been learned in war.

As in lastance, the Dakin solution for treating wounds in the Army hospitals abroad has saved tens of thousands of soldiers' lives and hundreds of thousands of soldiers' limbs by preventing blood poisoning and other after-consequences of wounds. The Dakin solution and the Dakin method can save life and limb in our shipyards just as efficiently. For, because workers are negligent about apparently trifling hurts sustained on the day's job, and local doctors are not always abreast of the latest practice followed in great hospitals like those organized for the Armies, infection sets in, and may lead to amputation or death. So Uncle Sam is going to take the Dakin solution and technique to every shipyard. Dr. Edward Martin, of Philadelphia, a specialist of international reputation in this branch of medicine, has assigned two assistants to the Shipping Board, to travel about the country and teach the Dakin method to physicians in shipyards and shipyard localities.

In health problems such as that of venereal disease, where even the best regulations of health authorities demand the intelligent co-operation of the men themselves, there will be a first line of defense in direct dealing with bad conditions, and a second line of defense in prophylactic lectures to shipyard workers, delivered by physicians working under the Shipping Board, and in co-operation with the Army and the Council of National Defense.

Uncle Sam went into ship building as a war emergency. He soon found that creating new shipyards and getting men to work in them was only half the problem. Shipyard spirit must be as good as Army or Navy spirit. Good fighting and working spirit are at least seventy-five per cent. good health. Therefore, good health is being built into every shipyard plant and laid down at the foundation of the human organization.

THE ACID TEST

Will Be Applied to the Prohibition Movement in This State After Wednesday.

Adams Express Company and the various transportation lines into this city have several notices on their liquor patrons that all shipments of intoxicating liquors into this city and county have ceased, and appeal is made to those having consignments at these places to call and get same before Wednesday as that date the law forbidding and prescribing a punishment for the shipping of liquor into dry territory goes into effect. Liquor for personal use, even, may not be taken home from wet cities to dry towns or country precincts.
The people will have opportunity, if this law is enforced, to test actual prohibition in these dry counties.
Many of the fights and murders in dry counties have been traced to whiskey imported from wet cities.

It is claimed that there are many theoretical prohibitionists opposed to open saloons who would not vote for the elimination of their private drams, but that remains to be seen. If the law forbidding shipments is enforced the people of the dry counties will have their most ardent wish as expressed at the polls gratified, which will no doubt make the dry counties as dry as the desert after the enlarged stocks that have been coming in for some time are exhausted.

Prohibition advocates are expecting that before the statewide amendment is voted on next year the nation itself will be dry. And it can be said without any fear of contradiction that the leaders of the nation in these times of peril in almost every avocation devoutly hope it will solve the problem in that way.

SERGEANT EMPREY HERE TO- NIGHT IN GREAT AMERICAN DRAMA "OVER THE TOP"

The Washington Opera House has famous fighter Empey booked in great picture tonight.
Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey, veteran of the Somme and author of the most famous of war books, "Over the Top" is in town this evening in the super-feature "Over the Top," which was made from Empey's book and the sergeant will be seen as the star of the picture.

Prior to accepting the Viagraph proposal, Empey, declined offers from theatrical managers and motion picture magnates, declaring that he preferred to make his appeal to Americans personally. Since his return to this country after eighteen months in Hell in the trenches of France, Empey has devoted himself to patriotic work. His personal appeal has raised more than one million dollars for the Second Liberty Loan, aided the Red Cross and has been a strong influence in swelling enlistments for the United States Army and Navy.

The police force was called on for aid by the local picture show manager at Nashville, Tenn., to keep the hundreds of thousands that were crowding in an already packed house back. This will be the first showing of this picture in this section of the country and will be shown here today and to-morrow, both afternoon and night at the Washington Opera House only.
